

Xiao Xiao Liu is studying for an MEng in Biomedical Engineering with Employment Experience and is currently on placement with Pfizer.

Xiao Xiao decided to do a placement year 'purely and simply because I was tired of studying' and also to get a clearer picture of the types of careers available to her when she has finished studying.

Midway through her placement Xiao Xiao believes 'I have learnt a lot of new things, both academic knowledge and experimental skills. They have help me realized my strengths and weaknesses. Being part of the placement program at the department of IDCoE has helped me build confidence and made me well-equipped for my career. With lots of benefits from the placement year, why would I do not recommend a placement to other students?'
