

You're desperate for some help really and for some support in your situation people talking about their own experiences and how they've managed to cope in difficult circumstances when you read some of the stuff the carer's written and how it affects them...

it's heartbreaking really

...the people in this forum - they know how it feels - there's nothing like actually having it to know how it feels