Ideas Bazaar:

Find Your Perfect Partner

If you are an academic looking for a creative partner or you are a creative practitioner who can help bring our research idea alive as part of Festival of the Mind – come along to the Ideas Bazaar!

Ideas Bazaar is where academics and the creative community meet and collaborate on projects that will highlight the University's research at the sixth Festival of the Mind in September 2022. This event will be opened by Greg Oldfield, Head of Public Engagement who will outline the funding process and how to meet collaborators.

Since 2011, we have seen academics from diverse disciplines such as nanotechnology, english, engineering, robotics, architecture, psychology and biomedical science, teaming up with artists, animators, filmmakers, poets, theatre companies, VR specialists, magicians and musicians in Sheffield, and as a result have created many unique projects. Successful collaborations have displayed our research during previous Festival of the Mind events at venues including the Spiegel tent, the iconic Castle House and Millennium Galleries, to audiences from the city and beyond.

What is Next?

If you would like to take part please register your attendance via the webpage at: www.sheffield.ac.uk/ideasbazaar

After the Ideas Bazaar has taken place, we will put further details of how to apply for funding on www.sheffield.ac.uk/ideasbazaar by October.

- We welcome applications for projects from October 2021 – December 2021
- Projects must be about University of Sheffield research
- Creative partners must be located within the South Yorkshire region
- Only one applicant can lead on one project but can act as a collaborator on others
- Notification of successful applications will be made in February 2022
