

Advertising your PhD research projects

Project entries must:

- Be a single defined research project.
- Have a defined project title.
- Have a named academic supervisor (with option to assign a second supervisor).

Project entries must not:

- Contain more than one project title/description
- Describe broad research themes or areas.
- Detail general announcements for one or more studentships within a department or research group.

- Where a limited number of studentships are available across a choice of research projects, an entry is required for each proposed or potential project.
- Project spaces are valid for 12 months and can be re-used throughout that period for the named lead supervisor if they wish to re-advertise a project or have a new project to promote. Simply login and update the details.

Other advertising options

If you are from an Arts, Humanities or Social Science area (including Business & Law) where students are required to define their own projects, we recommend you use one of our dedicated Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences PhD Programme pages instead.

Specialist PhD Programme pages are available for the following types of PhD Programme: 4 Year/New Route/1+3 PhD programme, Graduate Teaching Assistantship, Clinical PhD Programme, EngD Programme, and International Programmes taught in English.
