Worksheet for teachers

Get the children to become school/student journalists and develop questions they would like to ask in an interview with a typical undergraduate student (this could be published in a school or even our student magazine).

Involve children in a simple student budgeting exercise, giving groups a set amount of "money" and asking them to work out what proportion they should spend on books, food travel, rent, going out.

What is student life
like?

Plan (or even cook) a simple student menu working out ingredients, portions, timings and costs.

Look at university websites and ask children to design a poster encouraging others to consider coming to university.
