

A lot happens within Sheffield's seven hills. The largest theatre complex outside of London sits just down the road from one of Europe's biggest indie cinemas. In one corner of the city there's a string of galleries to explore; in another lies one of the best ale trails in the world. Festivals of design, documentary, music, art, film and words bring the city to life, whatever the season.

Check off the city's cultural highlights with your Sheffield Culture Map. Along the way, locate the independent food, drink and shopping gems that'll help you enjoy Sheffield like a local.

Hit the city.

Follow a gallery crawl round the Cultural Industries Quarter with a rummage for vintage threads in the independently-minded Devonshire Quarter. Start the day with a caffeine kick, and round it off with a cocktail and anything from a burrito to sushi to a deliciously OTT burger.

Running through a popular student spot, for decades 'Eccy' Road has buzzed with extracurricular life. Bars and shops seem to open up at a rate faster than anywhere else in the city, meaning you're always likely to run into something new. Sharrow Vale Road, meanwhile, is just about the prettiest row of independent shops and restaurants around.
