Is the work in copyright?
If the work is sufficiently old, or if it is purely factual data, or is not a person's original intellectual creation, then it may not qualify for copyright protection at all.
No
No permission is required
Yes
Is there an exception in law you can rely upon?
For example: quotation, criticism and review, illustration for instruction (education) - subject to fair dealing.
Yes
This is a defence
No
Is there a licence you can use?
For example: terms and conditions granting certain permission, or an open licence such as a Creative Commons or open software licence.
Yes
This is permission
No
If none of the above apply, contact the owner/creator of the item to ask for permission.
Plan ahead and leave plenty of time for a response, and keep a note of all correspondence.
Remember: no response means no permission.