

Knowing together, differently: collaborative performance practices in a disability arts group as inclusive artistic research Easy Read

This project is about exploring research methods in an arts based organisation

The project is being created with The Professors.

The Professors are a performing arts based group for Disabled artists.

In research, how the research is done can exclude Disabled people.

The team will work together to think about how research methods can be more inclusive to Disabled people.

This might happen from the group all doing the same thing or different things.

What the team do in the research may change during the project.
