In October 2016 the Denise Coates Foundation became the latest donor to be inscribed onto the Roll of Benefactors, which honours the most significant and transformative individuals and organisations who have made donations of £500,000 or more to support the University since 2002.

The Denise Coates Foundation was founded by Denise Coates, CBE, Sheffield alumna (BA Econometrics 1990) and the driving force behind the creation, development and growth of bet365 – the largest sports betting company in the world. The Foundation aims to make a positive difference to people’s lives particularly by placing an emphasis on funding directly to the frontline, where it has a real impact. Since its inception in 2012 the Foundation has supported a wide range of charitable causes by providing millions of pounds of funding to registered charities.

In October 2016 the Denise Coates Foundation became the latest donor to be inscribed onto the Roll of Benefactors, which honours the most significant and transformative individuals and organisations who have made donations of £500,000 or more to support the University since 2002.

The Denise Coates Foundation was founded by Denise Coates, CBE, Sheffield alumna (BA Econometrics 1990) and the driving force behind the creation, development and growth of bet365 – the largest sports betting company in the world. The Foundation aims to make a positive difference to people’s lives particularly by placing an emphasis on funding directly to the frontline, where it has a real impact. Since its inception in 2012 the Foundation has supported a wide range of charitable causes by providing millions of pounds of funding to registered charities.

The Denise Coates Foundation has assisted the University, and its students, with grants and grant commitments totalling over £825,000. These funds have been used to support: research into dementia at the Sheffield Institute for Translational Neuroscience (SITraN), research into hearing loss in the Department of Biomedical Science and a scholarship programme that has to-date committed financial support to 126 undergraduates.

The scholarship programme is intended to counter financial disadvantages that may otherwise stop an individual realising their full potential and are in addition to the existing undergraduate scholarships available at the University – significantly increasing the opportunities for undergraduates to receive financial support and ensuring that Sheffield continues to attract talented students, regardless of background or financial situation.

Miles Stevenson, Director of Advancement at the University of Sheffield, said, “The University was delighted to welcome the Denise Coates Foundation into the Roll of Benefactors for its tremendous support of life-changing medical research and undergraduates studying at the University.”

Denise Coates CBE was joined by a group of the Denise Coates Foundation scholarship recipients as the Foundation she leads was welcomed into the Roll of Benefactors in October 2016.
