

The University Library provides 24-hour access to study space, a huge range of books and online information (including online journals and ebooks) as well as advice to help you find and use information effectively. You'll find all the information you need to get started on the library webpages (www.sheffield.ac.uk/library/study).

Library sites

There are four different library sites where you can go to study, find reading for your course, use the computers or borrow a laptop, and get advice on finding, organising and referencing information. You'll need to bring your Ucard with you to get into the library, borrow books and to use the printers and copiers. Remember to ask a member of staff if you need anything.

- The Information Commons \(IC\) is open 24 hours a day. You should find most of your recommended books here. Visit the Information Desk on level 1 for help using the library, finding materials for your course, or for help with your computer or laptop.
- The Diamond is also open 24 hours a day, and has four floors of study space. Visit the top floor (Level 4) to speak to Library and CiCS staff at the Information Desk or to use the collection of reference books.
- Western Bank Library is a good place for quiet study or research, with books and journals on all subjects and a large reading room overlooking Weston Park.
- The Health Sciences Library, based in the Medical School at the Royal Hallamshire Hospital has books and journals covering medicine, dentistry and health.

Visit the learning spaces page (www.sheffield.ac.uk/learning-spaces) to check how busy each library is before you go and explore the other study spaces available across campus.

StarPlus is the Library's online search tool. Use it to find books and ebooks, online journals, articles, and much more. Log in to MUSE and open StarPlus from the link in the 'My Services' menu - this will give you personalised access to the Library's online resources. Use StarPlus to:

- request material that is out on loan and the Library will notify you when it's ready to collect
- view your Library account, including a list of your current loans
- save the details of useful books, journals and articles to your eShelf so you can refer to them later (useful when referencing)

Developing your skills: the 'Study' web pages provide links to the following:

- an introductory video to using the Library
- lists of useful online resources for your subject
- guidance on how to find information for your studies and assignments, avoid plagiarism, and cite/reference correctly, and more
- details of workshops to support your learning

Help and support

- For general enquiries, contact the Library Help Desk (by email library@sheffield.ac.uk, by phone 0114 222 720, by Live Chat <http://libraryhelp.shef.ac.uk/>), or speak to a member of library staff.
- Emily Stock is the librarian for Engineering – contact her for advice on finding reading for your studies or with any other questions you have relating to library support for your course (e.stock@sheffield.ac.uk, 0114 2227307, @Eng Librarian)

- If you're looking for a book or article the Library doesn't have, complete the InterLibrary Request form (available from the 'My Services' menu in MUSE). If you'd like to suggest a book for the Library to buy use the book recommendation form.
