One Hundred Views of the Arts Tower

An exhibition celebrating a Sheffield modernist beacon

Influenced by 19th-century Japanese artist Katsushika Hokusai’s One Hundred Views of Mount Fuji, Western Bank Library’s public gallery is hosting an exhibition that takes a look at the University of Sheffield’s iconic 1960s Arts Tower from a variety of viewpoints.

One Hundred Views of the Arts Tower is made up of artworks submitted through a public open call – featuring everything from photography and film to felt and lino print – alongside photos and materials from the building’s archives.

Dates:
Monday 11th February– Sunday 31st March 2019

Location:
Western Bank Library Gallery,
The University of Sheffield,
Western Bank, S3 7NA

Opening times:
Monday–Thursday 9am–6pm,
Friday 10am–6pm,
Saturday 12–6pm

One Hundred Views of the Arts Tower is organised by the Sheffield culture guide Our Favourite Places with support from the University of Sheffield. It’s a continuation of Sheffield Modern, a weekend of events inspired by the city’s heritage of modernist architecture, first held in October 2018 and due to return in autumn 2019.
